Privacy Policy & Educational Disclaimer

Your privacy is respected.

Information collected during registration may include your name, email address, payment details, and participation history. This information is used solely to administer the course, communicate programme updates, and improve the learning experience.

Personal information is not sold to third parties. Trusted service providers such as payment processors, email platforms, and course hosting providers may process information where necessary to deliver the programme.

Any personal sharing during live sessions or community discussions should remain confidential. Participants are asked to honour the privacy of fellow learners.

Educational Disclaimer

Soma Mati offers education in contemplative practices rooted in traditional wisdom. The programme does not provide medical, psychological, psychiatric, legal, or financial advice.

Participants remain responsible for their own wellbeing and are encouraged to seek appropriate professional support for any health or mental health concerns.

Participation is voluntary, and each individual chooses how to integrate the teachings into daily life.
